a! The enhanced compiler 402 receives a source program 404 for compilation and generation of computer products ~~404406~~. As examples, the enhanced computer products ~~404406~~ can include object file(s), executable program, and browser file(s). The computer products ~~404406~~ are enhanced by being reduced in size or compressed as compared to conventionally produced computer products. For example, size reduction to the computer products in the range of 15 - 40 percent can be achieved in accordance with the invention. In addition, compiler products can be generated faster than the conventional models. The source program 404 is typically a computer program written in a programming language such as Ada, C++, Fortran, Pascal, Java, etc.
